M: Do you know anything about table manners in China?

W: Only a little. In China, children are not allowed to talk while they are eating.

M: Yes, people think it is impolite.

W: But I notice many adults talking loudly during the meal.

M: That's right. And people often think that those who talk less don't get on well with others.

W: That's strange. Let's check the answers on the Internet.

M: Let's go.

M: Hello, everyone. I'm David, a sixteen-year-old boy. I went to England last year.

During my stay, I noticed something interesting with the English way of life. For example, you can use Mr or Mrs to greet him or her when you meet someone for the first time. When you get to know each other better and become close friends, you can just use their first names to greet them. One day, we visited some friends and had afternoon tea together. Afternoon tea is not just a drink but a light meal at about 4 p.m. We ate sandwiches and a large fruit cake.

In England, people usually drink tea with milk. So I tried to drink tea with milk too. Fish and chips is traditional food in England. You can buy it and eat it in special fish and chip shops on the high street, or you can take it away and eat it with your fingers! It is delicious! And you can't imagine how much they love potatoes and cheese!

If you are invited to come to an American family, don't worry too much.

Let me tell you something about the manners you should remember. First, you are supposed to buy a little gift such as some flowers or an album for the host. He or she will be very happy to see that. Second, you should be on time. Don't be late or the host will be unhappy. When you have dinner, you'd better show that you enjoy the food. After dinner, it's time to go home. Remember not to stay there for a long time and you are supposed to say "thanks" to your host. It's polite to do these.

In today's programme I'm going to tell you something about George Dawson and his book. George Dawson wrote a book called Life Is So Good. The book is full of stories about George's life. George wrote it in 1998 when he was 100 years old. However, George learnt to read just two years before he wrote the book. When George was 8, his father sent him to work. Life was hard for the poor American family. Food became more important than school. When George was 98, he heard about evening classes near his home. He still wanted to learn to read, so he went to evening classes with the help of his teachers. He wrote his book two years later based on George Dawson's life story. We can see that it is never too late to learn.

All my classmates are volunteers. Nick enjoys playing football and he teaches the young children how to play football. Dave loves taking care of animals and at weekends he works in the zoo or animal hospitals. John likes reading funny stories and he is good at telling stories and jokes, so he often visits sick kids in hospital to cheer them up. Sally likes painting, so she paints for the school newspaper. Anna loves singing and she sings for the old people or sings to raise money for homeless people. All of them are very happy because they can offer their help to others.
